

The formulation of a problem is often more essential than its solution which may be merely a matter of mathematical or experimental skill.

Albert Einstein